

FAMILY LAW SERVICES

Pre Nuptial and Cohabitation Agreements

When couples are planning on living together or marrying, we strongly recommend planning at the outset about what should happen in the unfortunate situation of the relationship breaking down.

There are significant financial implications in cohabiting and entering into marriage and, as with other situations that arise throughout your life, it is an opportunity to review your financial situation and consider what you would like to occur in certain scenarios.

Entering into a cohabitation agreement or a pre-nuptial agreement can avoid the necessity for there to be substantial correspondence or litigation if the relationship subsequently breaks down and significant weight is given to agreements entered into fairly and with the benefit of considered legal advice.

We can advise you on the merits of entering into such agreements and can prepare the documentation for you. It is always advisable for such documentation to be prepared as soon as possible and well in advance of the cohabitation or marriage occurring.

Our Family Law Team can advise about the timescales and costs to be incurred for preparing such agreements.
